A great crowd in the street, learning of Gaffga's horoic act, gathered about the ambulance as it backed up to the house and cheered lustily. The officer was too weak to speak. He and the woman were the only two persons in the building at the time.

Mrs. Lewis was painting a mantel in her kitchen when the ladder on which she was standing slipped, throwing her across a small gas stove on the floor. Her husband is George Lewis, a real estate operator on Broadway.
